That there is strong demand for legislation giving manufacturers right to fix prices, despite decisions of the Supreme Court holding price-fixing filegal, was the assertion of Joseph E. Davies, commissioner of corporations, of the Department of Commerce.

Price-fixing Question.

"The Bureau of Corporations is studying the price fixing question from an economic point of view," said Commissioner Davies. "The question vitally affects the mass of consumers. In processes of production from raw material to consumer, extraction, manufacture, and to consumer, extraction, manufacture, and distribution. I find distribution one of the greatest factors in the high cost of

"No sane man wants a fixed price on a Paris hat of latest mode," declared Donald Dey, of Syracuse, "but price-cutting on nationally advertised goods has become a menace and retailers should reach a saner method of doing business. The law permits the fixing of hours of labor and why shouldn't the fixing of prices be allowed when merchants may agree on a fair price minimum without injury to the consumer? The Sherman law was not designed to prohibit an agreement to sell thread at 5 cents a spool."

Arrangements for the first of a series of informal taiks and receptions to women employed in the various departments of the government and stores of this city, to be held at headquarters of the District of Columbia Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, 1402 H street, have been completed.

Mrs. Stoddard is chairman of the committee and will preside at a meeting to be followed by a social half hour, Monday evaning, at 1402 H street. There will be short taiks on the question of opposing woman suffrage.

The Senate Committee amendment, however, is by far the greater of two evils, and is certain to meet with the severest kind of opposition if it remains in the bill. A movement is on foot now to create a commission for the consideration of and action upon proposed changes in parcel post rates, weights, and zones, and this plan may be offered as a substitute for the Senate Committee amendment.

It is pointed out that satisfactory regulation of railroad, freight, express, and telephone rates has been accomplished only through the investing of an agency, semi-independent of Congress, with power to adjust rates. In these cases, the Interstate Commerce Commission is that agency. Its strength lies in its independance of legislative or political influence. Its decisions are subject to review only by the United States courts. It would be hard to find a more generally popular sovernmental agency than the Interstate Commerce Commission.
